ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS HAVE HIGH HOPES OF ELECTING
HARRY STRINGER GOVERNOR

With Republican Faction Still at War and State Aligned to Necessity for Civil Service Reform, Conditions Seem to Favor Overturning of Republican Majority of 94,000 in 1900—Candidate Has Begun Vigorous Campaign and Will Be Warmly Supported by State and National Organizations.

DENEEN IS HANDICAPPED BY HIS RELATIONS WITH YATES.

LAWRENCE B. STRINGER.
Democratic candidate for Governor of Illinois.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 13.—Facing a Republican majority of 94,000 in 1900, Lawrence B. Stringer, the new Democratic candidate for Governor of Illinois, has begun his campaign with a vigor and determination that has not been seen since the late Governor Yates.

Stringer, a young man with an unusual political ability, is campaigning vigorously, and he looks to the full election in a spirit of approaching confidence.

The conditions, he declares, are more encouraging for Democrats than when Alton began his winning race in 1892. There was a State issue then, and now there is a State issue now. And now, when Republican issues are sharpening in more than one quarter for political brethren, the working Democrats are united on a solid community-of-interests basis.

Encouraged by the candidate, by the candidate's friends and by the hopefulness of the "air" at the candidate's home town, one cannot but think that Democratic chances in Illinois are better than they were in 1892. It is complicated reasoning to figure out Democratic victory against Yates, but it looks like sound reasoning.

DEMOCRATS OUT TO WIN.

To begin with, and contrary to the general impression, the Democrats are going out to win the national and State tickets in Illinois. William F. Sherman and Thomas Tamm of the national organization are to confer in Chicago with Stringer and representatives of the State and Cook County committees a week from Saturday.

Then the details of an aggressive October campaign will be mapped out.

NOMINEE MURPHY'S
CHILLY RECEPTION

Sixteenth District Republican
Congressional Leader Roasts
the State Headquarters.

CITY AGAINST THE COUNTRY.

Congressional Aspirant Thinks
Present Organization Is Running the Campaign for Factional Purposes.

"Business methods" as the headquarters of the Republican State Committee do not appeal to A. P. Murphy of Crocker, Rockwell County, who is the Republican nominee for Congress in the Sixteenth District. When the State Convention met in the city last week, he was not present, and he is not expected to be present at the State Convention.

Mr. Murphy, of "Paw" Murphy, as he is better known, is one of the best-known workers in the party. With James E. Moore of Lehigh and Ben P. Russell of Shelbyville, he has been successful in keeping the Sixteenth District intact. When the district voted in convention, it usually voted as a unit. He received the nomination for Congress unanimously March 18 in Lehigh, a week after he was married.

He came to St. Louis from attending court in Pulaski County, Mo., the same day he went to the headquarters of the Republican State Committee in the city. During the administration of Thomas J. Aldrich, which had been his country, he was in the city. He was not a member of the State Committee, but he was a member of the State Committee.
